FEBRUARY, 1970, PROGRAM MEETING

Mrs. Ann Thurmond, Librarian, Jackson-Madison County Library, held the interest of her audience throughout her talk at the February meeting of our Society. Her subject was "The Acquisition of Material for the Tennessee Room". Mrs. Thurmond gave each member and guest typed copies of listed books that are in the Tennessee Room, some 500 in number which are priceless genealogical and historical books. She said that new books are being acquired almost each day, some made possible through a recent bequest in a will in which the donor left $3000 to the library for the purchase of books.

Mrs. Thurmond told of microfilms which are being made by the State of historical documents of the counties of Tennessee. She added in her talk that an appropriation of $30,000 has been made by Madison County and the City of Jackson for books for the library and 500 per month are being acquired. She concluded her interesting talk by saying that "The Tennessee Room" is a valuable research center of great value to genealogists and historians and to students who are doing research.

The following notes contributed by Mrs. P. E. McGuyre, 1920 S. 107th St. West, Wichita, Kansas 67209:

The American Road Builder, 525 School Street, S. W., Washington, D. C. 20024, has for sale at 75¢ per copy a booklet entitled, THE STORY OF ROADS. It has pictures and maps and is quite interesting. It traces routes of migration, and is the story of roads in this country from the beginning through the building of the Interstate Highway System.

Damon Veach's column, "Your Texas Ancestors", which is printed in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, issue of March 8, 1970, carries an announcement that the HISTORY OF HOOD COUNTY (TEXAS) will be published around June 1. Pre-publication price $6.00, post-publication price $7.00. It will be the 3rd edition of this volume, the first two now being collector's items. "The Junior Women's Club of Granbury, Texas, is compiling this updated version and many events only touched upon in the earlier editions are being described at length. Several pages are being devoted to the history of Somervell County, which was part of the original Hood County area. Mrs. Roger Nunnallee, president of the Junior Woman's Club, states that they are soliciting stories and pictures from all available sources in order to make this book as authentic and thorough as possible. Any readers having such items should contact Mrs. Nunnallee at Box 235, Granbury, Texas 76048. Orders for the book should also be sent to this box number."

Hood County, Texas, was formed from Johnson County and is the county where Davy Crockett's widow - Elizabeth Patton Crockett - received her large land grant from Texas for Davy's services, and where she moved, lived and died, and there is a Texas State Park to her memory there.

BULLET, Vol. I, #1, Dec. 1969, The Sharp-shooter (1886-1888), can be ordered from Mrs. Routh Whitley Benbow, 2616 NW 24th St., Fort Worth, Texas 76106. Exegesis: The Sharp-Shooter was the progenitor of 34 known newspapers published by my grandfather, Sharp R. Whitley and his children. It dates from Jan. 30, 1886 through Sept. 1888, and was printed in Overton, Rusk County, Texas. However, its contents are by no means limited to Overton, or Rusk County, or even Texas. If people and events were newsworthy the Sharp-Shooter printed it. In extracting these excerpts from the complete office file items of interest to genealogists and historical researchers have been given priority. Routh Whitley Benbow, December, 1969.

(To Be Continued)

The following notice was submitted by Mary Ann (Mrs. L. R.) Mitchell 72 Woodhaven - Jackson, Tenn. 38301. It was among papers given her by Callie Mae (Mrs. H. R.) Belew - 441 E. Chester - Jackson, Tenn. "Peg-legged" Adam Huntsman arrived in the Jackson area in 1821. This early lawyer quickly became involved in the local politics of his day. A close political ally of Andrew Jackson, Huntsman's defeat of Davy Crockett for a seat in the U. S. House of Representatives is said to be the reason that Crockett left for Texas and the Alamo.

4th July, 1823

TO JAMES CHISUM, ESQ.

Sir,

A circular of yours dated the 30th of May, addressed to the Voters of White, Overton and Jackson, was this day handed to me, wherein you call upon the voters of this district to enquire who wrote the presentment of the Grand Jury of Overton against your legislative conduct. I presume you have been informed that I drew it up for and at the request of the Grand Jury, or some of them, and as you request the people to enquire into that matter, with a view to point them to me I suppose, I will proceed to satisfy both you and them as well as the facts therewith connected will enable me. When you was a candidate for the Senate in 1821, a considerable number of the north, north west and centre parts of Overton county voted for you, because you was their county man, and because they believed it impossible for you to vote for the seat of justice in Overton county to be removed, or for any bill which would have that effect; they had two good reasons for believing so, 1st, they knew the seat of justice was placed as near the centre of the county as an eligible situation with water could be had, and which is in less than three miles of the centre. And 2ndly, they knew that you were one of the commissioners who originally placed it where it now stands at Monroe, upon oath. Therefore, the idea never struck their minds, that it was possible you would set it down where it now stands on oath as a commissioner, and remove it away on oath as a Senator. This you positively did do as commissioner, and the bill you tried to get passed as a Senator, would as certainly have had the effect to have removed it away from where you placed it. Therefore, when the Grand Jury understood that the bill you introduced in the Legislature had a dark and covered design in it, that instead of reducing Overton county to her constitutional limits as its caption pretended, by a strange and unheard of mathematical process, you tried to reduce Overton county to her limits by taking off a considerable piece from the south west end of Morgan that was mountain, and had not ten inhabitants in it, and adding it in your bill to a part of Overton, in order to make said reduced county as long and as narrow as possible, which if passed into a law, would directly have had the effect to move the seat of justice down in a directions towards your own neighborhood. They began to think it was time to inquire into your legislative conduct. To reduce one county to her limits by adding a part of another to it, was a species of mathematicks they did not understand, and by that kind of wily contrivance, cutting it down on one side, adding from Morgan on another, you could at last get the seat of justice out of the the centre, and get the centre towards your own neighborhood; and this you did against the wish of a large majority of Overton county, and when these facts came to the knowledge of an honest Grand Jury of your county, they on their oath presented your legislative conduct as being destructive of their best interests. What excuse you have for these things I know not. I have in two or three instances in the legislature voted to give the people the right to move their seats of justice, when either by design or mistaken views they had been placed much out of the centre in the first instance, this I did in relation to Jackson, Campbell and Bledsoe counties and I would forever do it under similar hardships. But the idea never once struck my mind, that it was possible any man could think it right, when the seat of justice was placed in the centre in the first instance, to vote to cut it down and add to it in such a way as to throw it out of the centre, for the purpose of moving it afterwards; this you attempted to do absolutely, without allowing the people the right of voting for or against the measure, as was done in Campbell and Jackson counties. The above facts I know to be indisputably true, for the bill you introduced for that purpose I have seen, and it is now on the files in the Secretary's office, and can be seen by any person, and I have now the map you drew in conformity therewith; in doing this you deceived a majority of Overton county, and the Grand Jury was the proper organ through whom they expressed their disapprobation of your conduct. The reason why it lay from last September until its publication, was in consequence of your moving a part of your property to the Forked Deer country, and telling publicly every where your intention of moving there with the balance this fall, they thought it probable you would not again interfere with the concerns of the county, and therefore it would be unnecessary to publish it. But when they found that notwithstanding you had moved a considerable part of your property to the lower country, and made public declarations of your going with the balance this fall. You all at once to serve your friends, came out as a candidate for the Senate, altho' not ten days before you came out, you told some of your acquaintances you would move this fall; they believed you did this for the purpose of moving the seat of justice from the centre where it now stands down amongst your friends before you moved away, and therefore they thought it necessary to publish the presentment, as I suppose, for I was not in the country when it was published. Thus Sir, I have answered the inquiry in your circular as far as my knowledge or information extends, and as far as it relates to me. This I have done Sir, without malice or ill will, nor would I have answered it but that I believed the inquiry directed to me, and I felt justified in vindication of my own conduct to answer it. As to your private conduct, character and talents, as a man and a neighbor. I have seen much to approve, But as to your public or political opinions, I have always believed them to be dangerous to the local concerns of the district. Because, I have heretofore thought, and yet believe, that Sampson Williams (a name I mention without either praise or censure) was connected in opinion and movements with you, to cut up the counties of White, Overton and Jackson so as to answer your own purposes at the expence of the Counties and counties therein concerned, and as I have always acted independently on all subject, I shall give some of the reasons why I entertain that opinion.

1st. In the year 1811, you used vast exertions in support of a petition while Sampson Williams was in the Senate, giving aid to lay off a new county, composed of part of the counties of White, Overton and Jackson, leaving the centre of said county near your own plantation or Williams' Quarter in Overton county; and this attempt was partially renewed by you both in 1812, and this if I am correctly informed, was after you, yourself, had aided to reduce Jackson county to her limits and she had none legally to spare. The limits of the new county were to run within less than eight miles of Monroe, and within less than ten (perhaps eight) miles of Sparta. This county, which you in the country and Williams in the Legislature, supported with all your means (had it not been prevented by the vigilance and activity of Gen. Bird Smith, who then represented White,) would have been established. What would have been the consequence? It would certainly have moved Sparta and Monroe. It would have established Williamsburg, and the new Court-house near Williams' Quarter: for both Monroe and Sparta would have been thrown considerably out of the centre of White and Overton. Then sir, you would, in conjunction with Williams, have destroyed two Court houses for the purpose of establishing one in your own neighborhood. These facts appear from the petition you took so active a part in, and from the Bill that Williams introduced in the Legislature, which is likewise in the Secretaries Office amongst the rejected bills, and may be inspected by any person.

2ndly. In the year 1817, when I had published my sentiments to the people of Jackson county that I would pass a law, if elected, authorising them to vote for moving their seat of Justice, inasmuch as it had been placed far from the centre in the first instance, in order to prevent the people of that county from redressing their grievances about their Seat of Justice, Sampson Williams came out against himself, and to support your old friend and confederate Williams, you wrote several publications against me, and put no names to them, and so vehement was you trying to elect Williams, (by which the people in Jackson would have been deprived of their rights) that on the morning of the election, you and Williams at Sparta, opened a new set of publications that had never before seen the light, and you and him got up in a piazza in Sparta, called the congregation, and read the publications you had written, you made a speech for Williams, altho' I never heard one sentence of opposition from either of you until I declared my sentiments in favor of allowing the people to move their Seat of Justice in Jackson to the centre, as it was a great distance from it. These are the circumstances which induced me to believe that there was a clear understanding and confederacy between you and him on the subject of these Court-houses as the policy you then both adopted, and which you singly have since pursued, precisely corresponds with that idea.

Then, as an additional reason why I think your politicks are dangerous, although I do not know that you have a direct connection with the plan, but it so exactly accords with the policy adopted for many years by you and Williams, that I will mention it in order that the people in Overton and Jackson, may be prepared to meet any attempt that may be made to their prejudice. The people in some parts of Smith county are getting very restless about their Seat of Justice and dividing their county. I believe there is a plan formed by some designing persons, to throw a part of the east boundary of Jackson to Overton, and a part of the eastern boundary of Smith to Jackson, by that means the Seat of Justice of Overton could be moved lower down; that in Jackson back to Williamsburg, and the disorganizers in Smith, effect something in view. The reason why I believe it is, that one of your near neighbors and warmest supporters, told me positively, it was the plan. Another told Col. Matlock of Overton, in substance the same thing. I know not that you have given encouragement to this contrivance, but it is in the same train of policy, which I think is injurious to the people, but of that, they are to be the best judges, they will act on it coolly and impartially, and do you justice I have no doubt.

As I am not your personal enemy, I will act more generously with you than you did with me in 1817, for I will put my name to this, in order that I may be responsible for any thing set forth herein as of my own knowledge, and also give it in time sufficient to allow you to make any explanations in your power, whereas, in 1817, you brought out a parcel of Circulars against me on the morning of the election. Now, if it is the wish of the people after understanding the subject fairly that you should be their Senator, and that they can run the risque, I am content it should be so; I believe you possess talents, but that your political tenets are erroneous, but if so the people are to be effected by them, consequently they are the judges.

Corinth, April 6th 1862

Dear Eliza,

I will now proceed to write to you and give you an account of our trip so far

We took the regular passenger train yesterday and arrived here safe at 2 o'clock, the senery is truly great here to one that never saw an army before. The hills for several miles around are covered with tents resembling hills of Snow. We are at the encampment of our Reg. two and a half miles north of town, but our Reg. and nearly all the rest are gone out to the battle field 12 or 15 miles from here leaving only the sick at the tents.

There was some skirmish fighting yesterday towards the river. We took several yankey prisoners. I saw them in town. There was heavy cannonading commenced in that direction this morning at 8 oclock and kept up several hours. We could hear it very distinctly, it has now ceased. We are without guns but we will get them soon.

Since writing the above we have listened to an excellent sermon by Brother Milikin, it being 5 oclock.

The news is comeing in from the field, it is said we are driving the enemy back down the river. Neelys Reg. is campd 1/2 a mile from us. I have been over there, they are all gone to the battle field but the sick. Francis is in the camp verry unwell with diarea. he told us that Joel Lax died in Memphis a few weeks ago. Mr. Robinson requests me to say to his family that he is well he has not seen the Col. yet. 6 oclock the news is comeing in from the field verry favourably but nothing authentic our men are much cheered by the news. the fight was going on at 1 oclock, the yankies retreating, great loss on both sides.

Monday morning. Our wounded was comeing in till late last night, the fight was going on at half hour by sun, the yankies had retreated 3 miles with great loss. Heavy fight expected today I suppose as many of us as can get guns will go out today. the battle is now about 20 miles from here. I will write again at the final termination of the battle if I am permitted to do so.

Write to me on the receipt of this Direct to, J. H. Gates, Corinth, Miss.
13th Reg. Tenn. Vol. care of Capt. Jones.

Yours as ever

/s/ John H. Gates

We are now cooking rations to go to the field-of battle.

MASON CEMETERY

The following inscriptions were contributed by Mrs. Herbert F. May, 113 Hollywood Dr., Jackson, Tenn., 38301. The cemetery is located on the farm of J. Franklin Raines, Rt.#7, Humboldt, Crockett Co., Tenn. about 1 mile from the Mason Grove Gin and Store on a black top "Farm to Market" road that is between Gadsden & Humboldt. The graveyard is in a wooded area, much grown up and uncared for, many stones broken and fallen down. There are a few of the old sandstone markers on which were no inscriptions. Copied August 16, 1963, by Mrs. B. O. Wolfe and Mrs. Herbert F. May, both of Jackson.

REMINISCENCES OF MARTHA EDWARD HALL

"When the war between the States began I was a child nine years of age. My father was a planter in Gibson County, Tennessee, of which Trenton was the County Seat. Cotton, corn, and apples were the usual crops of that section and we had a large number of negro slaves living on our plantation to cultivate the soil.

My father, Charles Edwards and mother, Virginia Ivey Edwards, were the parents of four girls and two boys which, by no means was considered a large family in those days. We lived in a large colonial house on a hill, at the foot of which ran a cool, clear spring of water. Water from this spring was piped into the house affording us the rare luxury of running water.

Katherine and Nancy, my two oldest sisters, were popular belles of antebellum days and many times my little sister, Ada, and I have sat, spellbound, gazing at their beautifully beruffled hooped skirts which so often floated gracefully through maizes of the quadrille. To me they appeared to have an astonishing number of suitors, but my father, who was a staunch old "blue stocking" Presbyterian, often said that Kate and Nancy would "go through a cane break and take a crooked reed." Yet, in spite of this not very complimentary prophesy, Nancy married Doctor Thomas Brasher, a surgeon, who served in the war, Katherine married Walter Willerford, a handsome young man, son of a prominent family, Ada married William Coker of LaGrange, Tennessee, and I married James M. Hall, a boy soldier in the war.

In 1862 my oldest brother, Frank Edwards, was a student at Yale College. There the northern and southern boys had already begun to quarrel and even indulge in an occasional fight over the widely discussed question of slavery. Frank had been brought up by black mammies and had spent his childhood playing with little pickaninnies, so when any argument arose among the college boys he was quick to defend the southern point of view. The call to arms came and Frank immediately left school to return home and defend his southland against the intruding yankees. He was fitted out with a grey uniform and fine saddle horse by Father and his first battle was the bloody one at Shiloh. It was in this battle that my mother's youngest brother, James Ivey, an officer, was killed. The death of this beloved uncle spread the first veil of tragedy over our home and, although the battlefield was searched for three days, his body was never recovered.

Several months later we moved to east Arkansas where my father with his slaves erected temporary log houses and began to clear the virgin soil for planting. Soon he succeeded in building a large house for the family similar to the one in which we had lived in Tennessee. A number of plantation settlements sprang up around us as other men with a pioneer spirit were quick to recognize the worth of this new and unsettled land. Pleasantly surrounded by wealthy and cultured neighbors we were a prosperous and happy family enjoying all the conveniences of the day.

Suddenly and almost without warning hordes of Yankee soldiers descended upon us, demoralizing our labor, destroying our crops, and driving our cattle off to their camps. They raided our smoke-house and even seized the poultry from our yards.

The growing crops in our fields were either fed to their horses or trampled upon. We succeeded, however, in saving our jewels and hand-beaten table silver from their lustful hands by burying it.

When every animal on our plantation had been confiscated by the Federal troops except one mule, my father mounted him and rode off in search of some cattle which he expected to buy. On the road he encountered several Yankee soldiers who commanded him to halt. Father resisted rather than be taken prisoner with (out) so much as an effort to defend himself against the detested devastators of his home and country. The result was that he was shot and wounded in the arm while they rode off with his last mule, leaving him to die in the grimmest moments. For within an hour a friend came along, found him and succeeded in getting him home and his wound bandaged before he completely succumbed from loss of blood.

Every few days the Yankees visited our home to plunder and take what they wanted. Once, when Frank made a trip home to get some clothes, he brought my little sister and me a pair of new shoes apiece, the first we had had since the war started. We kept these highly treasured slippers in our room in a bureau drawer. One afternoon we went into our room to find a Federal soldier standing there cramming our lovely shoes into his pocket. I was too frightened to speak but my sister screamed and fought like a young tiger to get her shoes away from the man. He watched her rage for several minutes with an amused sneer on his face, then removed one of the shoes from his pocket and cut it into shreds with his knife. A short while afterwards Frank was taken prisoner and his horse sent north to an officers wife. It was not long, though, until an exchange of prisoners was arranged and Frank was released.

Both Frank and Charles fought in the eventful battle of Helena, a town which sent seven generals to the war, and where today is located a large Confederate cemetery. Their general was Sterling Price, affectionately called "Old Pap", under whom they also fought in the battle of Kansas City, Missouri.

Whenever there was to be a battle fought near home in which either Frank or Charles was to participate, my father and a neighbor always went in order to be of assistance or, if necessary, to bring home the mangled bodies of their loved ones. This neighbor was finally captured and put in prison where he contracted Tuberculosis and died from exposure.

By this time our home was practically isolated and we were cut off from the outside world. We were compelled to spin, weave, and sew our own clothes. We even made by hand the uniforms for our soldiers. Shoes for the family were made by attaching new cloth tops to the soles of old ones, and my oldest sister got to be quite an artist at designing and making shoes. Merchants were forbidden to sell such things as sugar and coffee, the necessities of life to the southern people. My mother and sister, however, who still wore the hoopskirts fashionable at that time managed, at intervals, to ride stealthily into town, secretly purchase such merchandise as were essential from the old merchants, and smuggle it back to our home under their wide and swooning skirts. Thus, many a pound of sugar and coffee was brought from the stores in town to our plantation home.

Even though the young negro slaves deserted to follow after the Yankees who were looting and stealing over the south, the older blacks proved their loyalty by remaining at home on the plantation and raising the crops, just as if their masters were there and no war was going on. It was through the efforts of these faithful slaves that the women and children were kept from starving throughout the long, trying years of the contest.

Lee's surrender and the closing of the war was followed by the terrible reign of the Carpet Baggers. Negroes were put in office over the whites. One was made sheriff in my own country. The entire south was placed under marshall law and the Yankees sent to enforce this law succeeded in stealing and destroying even more than the soldiers had done.

It was a blow to the pride of the old Southern gentlemen and of their sons who had survived the war to be forced to submit to the rule of these outlaws and blacks. Conditions became unendurable and it was obvious that something had to be done. The solution came when a master mind, recognizing the superstitious fears of the negro race, formulated the plan of frightening the blacks and threatening them with the supernatural every time they attempted to cooperate with the carpet baggers in carrying out some piece of devilish work. The result of such an idea was the Ku Klux Klan, which all of the southerners joined, and soon no negro could be found who would consent to be made even the pettiest of officers, for too many times "them haunts had come out o' th' woods after them and mos' nearly scared them to death." The blacks in their mortal terror were convinced that their young "massas" who had been killed in the war were returning in spiritual form to make them behave themselves. No longer would they leave their cabins after dark for fear of encountering the gruesomely menacing figures, and the Carpetbaggers, when the negroes began to fail them, realized that their rule was ineffectual. Gradually they withdrew and the country, was, once more, restored to the southern whites. Rutherford B. Hayes by this time, had been elected President of the United States and some semblance of order arose out of the chaos which had prevailed during the preceding six years."
